Uitrusting

At first glance, various cars spring to mind. A touch of Mini, a hefty dose of Mercedes-Benz, and the bonnet seems to have been copied from the Opel Adam. A possible competitor is the equally rather eccentric Kia Soul, while we can also well imagine that Mini Countryman owners will be enthusiastic about the Smart #1 and choose this car instead of waiting for the fully electric Countryman. There is no resemblance to the current Smart ForTwo, and in fact, that small car is not part of Smart's alliance with Geely. The #1 lays the foundation for the brand's new design language and suggests that more models are to come. Where the hashtag is often used as 'ends with a hash', in this case it means exactly the opposite, and the hash opens the door to a new generation.
